

Privacy Policy

This section explains how and why the Company collects, manages, preserves, and protects the information of its Users in the context of the services We provide. The website, which delivers information with a focus on financial education, is accessible to all users of the domain. In the informational services, there may be links to websites or applications run by third parties. We are not accountable for the privacy practices or content of third-party websites or applications. The Website uses cookies, logs, and other technologies to automatically collect system/device and usage information. These text files, known as cookies, let us manage and secure our services and adjust them to your preferences. You may disable the use of cookies on the settings page.

There's a chance that some Website features won't function if cookies are disabled. Access to specific areas may also be restricted. The information the website collects may consist of, but is not limited to: a. Name and contact details. All information on the Website is protected by the applicable intellectual property copyright laws and regulations. It is strictly prohibited to use, store, reproduce, display, alter, distribute, or transmit any of the Website's material without the Company's prior written approval. All intellectual property rights remain in the Company. The business retains the right to file a lawsuit if it uncovers any content, materials, or copyrighted items being utilized improperly. Disclaimer: Nothing on the website, including news, market information, blogs, analysis, etc., should be interpreted as professional advice from a recognized authority. The data is provided "as is." The User acknowledges that this is the case and agrees that the information is only being provided for educational purposes.

The business disclaims all responsibility for any damages or expenses incurred in using the website's content. We automatically gather your log information when you use or access our site and services, including the pages you view and the time of your visit, your IP address and other network identifiers, and the referral page that led you to our site. We also gather data about your device, including the kind of browser and mobile device you use, the app version, and information about your mobile network. Additionally, if you allow your location settings to be enabled on your device, we may be able to gather information from your device, including its specific position. We keep track of user activity on our website, which includes any posted content, logged account information, and transaction details including the sum and currency of deposits and withdrawals.

You agree that "Cookies" and other software, including web beacons, are used by us to automatically gather data. When you visit our site, your browser receives a small amount of data called a cookie that is stored there and helps us improve our services as well as your usage and experience. Additionally, it allows us to determine which regions and features of our services receive the most visitors overall and are the most frequently used. You may receive the necessary services, as well as services that are maintained and improved, using the information we have acquired from you. We may also use your information to administer and confirm your account, as well as to meet our legal and regulatory requirements.

The information you supply also enables us to keep an eye on any posts and actions, including any potential misuse of our services and the detection of criminal activity. You recognize and agree that the data we gather about you may also be used as evidence in court orders, legal actions, and investigational proceedings. You consent to us using the data as a reference in the event that complaints or disputes arise. Regarding the disclosure of information, we only share collected data with the Company, its subsidiaries, and affiliates, including our service providers and financial institutions, for business purposes.

You accept that in compliance with any applicable legislation or legal procedure, we may also share your information in response to a request for information. To meet criteria for law enforcement or national security, this also includes legitimate requests made by public authorities. If a client wants to access any information about another client, they must submit a formal written request to our email address with a good and clear justification for doing so, subject to our approval. We reserve the right to decline or revoke any request to access data or records.